High Court ends cop's case

DANVILLE —The attorney for a policeman who accused the local newspaper of libel said Monday the nation's highest court had ended his client's chance of winning the case.

"The U.S. Supreme Court was our last shot," said attorney Richard Opsahl of Rantoul, "That's too bad."

The high court, without comment, let stand rulings that Michael Reed had failed to prove defamatory articles about him in the Commercial News were published with "actual malice."

The stories linked Reed to a suspected police burglary ring. Opsahl said Reed should not have been considered a "public official" for the purposes of a libel suit.

Public officials must prove an allegedly libelous statement about them was made with actual malice—with knowledge or reckless disregard of its falsity.

Private citizens who sue for libel must prove the statement was false and made negligently.

The 1978 articles that sparked Reed's suit named him in connection with a grand jury investigation into burglaries committed in 1970 and 1971. Reed never was charged with a crime.

Trial set for killer

BARTOW, Fla. —The trial of a retired librarian will hinge on whether a jury believes he was temporarily insane when he fired on children, shoppers and police officers during a seven-hour siege, killing six people.

Lawyers for William B. Cruse, 61, planned to argue that alcohol and psychiatric problems caused him to open fire with a semiautomatic rifle, a shotgun and a revolver outside his home in the coastal community of Palm Bay and at two adjacent shopping centers.

Jury selection began Monday, with Circuit Judge John Antoon convening a pool of more than 100 people from which to select a 12-member jury and several alternates.

The shooting spree April 23, 1987, led to 36 felony charges that could send Cruse to the electric chair: six counts of first-degree murder, 28 of attempted murder and two of kidnapping.

The trial was moved 75 miles west to Bartow after a telephone survey suggested that many people in central Florida's Brevard County believed Cruse guilty.

In a videotaped interview after his arrest, Cruse calmly told police he believed neighbors, strangers and supermarket employees were constantly spreading rumors that he was homosexual. He said he had to stop it.

Bush implores Senate to approve Tower

WASHINGTON (AP) — An angry President Bush said Monday he's fed up with innuendos against Defense Secretary-designate John Tower — "this decent man" — and called on lawmakers to approve the nomination as bitter debate resumed in the Senate.

"I stand by this man," Bush told a wildly cheering Veterans of Foreign Wars audience. "I stand by him because he is uniquely qualified as the right man to take charge of the Pentagon."

He asked senators to "use their own experience with John Tower as an expert on defense issues, as a former colleague and as a tough, hard-nosed negotiator to guide them."

Hours after Bush spoke, Republicans and Democrats, ignoring Bush's call to "put partisanship aside," clashed once more on the Senate floor.

Republican Whip Alan Simpson of Wyoming called the accusations against Tower "so obviously flimsy" and urged his coeagues not to base their decisions on allegations recounted in the FBI report on Tower.

Simpson called on his fellow senators "to walk a mile in John Tower's shoes before they cast a vote against him based upon the testimony I've seen."

Sen. James Exon, D-Nebraska, retorted that while he had voted with the president on other nominations, he would not support Tower because of "the personal qualifications of the nominee."

Democratic opposition to Tower remained solid. An Associated Press survey showed 47 Democrats and Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., either solidly against the nomination or leaning against it, and 40 Republicans either solidly committed or leaning toward confirming Tower. Democrats hold a 55-45 majority in the Senate.

Jackson's efforts hurting him

CHICAGO (AP)—Jesse Jackson fasted three days because he hungers for the defeat of Democratic mayoral nominee Richard M. Daley, but some Democrats say Jackson's efforts are straining the two-time Democratic presidential contender's party credentials.

"What kind of credibility does that give Jackson nationwide with other Democrats?" asks Illinois party Chairman Vince Demuzzio. "This is certainly not going to bode well for Jackson nationally if he has any future ambitions, which I'm sure he does."

Jackson backed Mayor Eugene Sawyer in the Democratic primary won last week by Daley, but that was because the candidate of his choice—Democratic Alderman Timothy Evans—sat out the primary in favor of a third-party bid in the April 4 general election.

The attack on Jackson's party credentials is only the latest event in what has become an imbroglio in the politics of Chicago's black community since Harold Washington, the city's first black mayor, died near the start of his second term in 1987.

Jackson has tried to be a peacemaker, but his plea for unity among supporters of Sawyer and Evans during the primary went unheeded. Now his position is at odds with the man Jackson successfully backed to head the Democratic National Committee.

Farmers may promote their crop

CHAMPAIGN (AP)—U.S. soybean farmers may be asked to contribute about $60 million a year to promote their crop, but they will have an opportunity to decide whether that really increases their profits.

"They can see how the money is invested and what the results are," said Steve Drake, spokesman for the American Soybean Association in St. Louis.

Delegates representing ASA's 30,000 members voted Friday to support a national checkoff, if implemented, would be put to a vote by farmers after it had been in place for 18 to 36 months. The farmers would decide whether it should continue.

Marlyn Jorgensen, an Iowa farmer and vice president of ASA, said Monday that soybean growers support the national checkoff because the current system is unfair.

Twenty-six states have soybean checkoffs, but their rates vary and not all farmers contribute to programs to find new markets and uses for beans and to improve crop research.

"The No. 1 thing the farmers said is this thing ought to be fair," said Jorgensen.

He said the proposed national checkoff would be fair because "everyone invests and everyone benefits."

ASA estimates the program would raise about $60 million in a typical year, with half of the money remaining in the individual states for local research and promotion.

Weather forecaster says end of snow in sight

By CATHY PODWOJSKI

City editor

The snowstorm which smothered Charleston in several inches of snow Monday morning will give way to 60 degree weather by Saturday, a National Weather Service forecaster said.

Rod Palmer said the snow will let up early Monday evening to clear the way for "milder, gentler weather."

While Tuesday will remain cold, only reaching the mid 20s, by Saturday the temperature will reach 60 degrees Foster said.

"If we didn't have the snow on the ground, it would probably reach 70 degrees by Saturday," he added.

Until Saturday arrives, though, Eastern students will have to handle the snow which has recently fallen.

Charleston Police Chief Maurice Johnson said the snow has not caused too many problems for travelers.

Sgt. Rebecca Marvin of the Coles County Sheriff's Department agreed very few accidents beside drivers sliding off the roadway have been reported.

She added the ramps entering and leaving the main highways such as Interstate 57 are especially slippery.

Mark Dwiggins, Charleston's

city engineer, said the city's efforts to clean up the streets began Sunday at noon.

"They started clearing and putting down salt on Sunday at noon and continued their work through today about 4 (p.m.)," Dwiggins said. "I think there are still some people out working tonight."

Bangles tickets go slow

By TONY CAMPBELL

Staff writer

Exactly 500 tickets were sold for the April 7 Bangles concert Monday, but bad weather kept sales slightly below expectations.

The lack of tickets sold this year could be attributed to the adverse weather conditions. "I guess the weather had something to do with it," David Milberg, student activities director, said.

Milberg said the temperature is supposed to rise and hopefully more people will get out and buy tickets.

"We wanted to be prepared in case there was a large line," Milberg said.

However, students didn't have to wait in line and the number of tickets sold was less than UB officials expected. Milberg said UB expected to sell more tickets than they did.

The first-day ticket sales for last year's Squeeze concert left students standing in long lines. Ticket sales for that day totaled 1,327, but the total dropped to 190 for the second day.

Sales for the general public begin Tuesday and area ticket outlets will be selling tickets, Milberg added.

UB concert coordinator Trever Brown said there's has been great feedback from the community and the high schools in the area.

Tickets may be purchased at outlets in Charleston and Mattoon, Brown said.

Thirsty's fights suspension

By CATHY PODWOJSKI

City editor

A suit to temporarily delay the 21-day suspension leveled against Thirsty's, 508 E. Monroe Ave., has been filed by Thirsty's attorney Ron Tulin.

Tulin filed a complaint for injunction against Liquor Commissioner and Mayor Murray Choate in response to Choate's recent decision to close the bar for a three-day and 21-day suspension. The decision stemmed from two separate incidents in which underage students were allegedly allowed into the tavern and served alcohol.

In the complaint, Tulin said the appeal, which he filed on the behalf of owner James Sears, would not be heard by the Illinois Liquor Commission until April 15, after the suspensions had been served.

Thirsty's was recently closed from Friday to Sunday for the first of the suspensions. The 21-day suspension began Monday and is scheduled to continue until March 26.

To prevent "irreparable damage" from loss of business during the suspensions while waiting for the appeal to be heard, Tulin filed the complaint to push back the time the suspensions would be served.

Tulin said he expects to receive an answer to his complaint within the week.

"It shouldn't take too long, but with the weather, things have gotten kind of jammed up," Tulin said.

Choate, who made the decision after a Feb. 24 liquor hearing, could not be reached for comment.

Thirsty's and Panther Lounge, 1421 S. Fourth St., will also face charges stemming from a Jan. 30 accident involving two Eastern students at a hearing which has yet to be rescheduled.

Two seminars kicks off Aids Awareness Week

By TONY CAMPBELL

Staff writer

This week is AIDS Awareness Week and activities will begin Tuesday with two seminars to give accurate and complete information about the feared AIDS virus.

"AIDS in the Workplace," will be held from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. Tuesday in the East side of the Union Ballroom. A guest panel will consist of Jerry Carden, health educator at Mercy Hospital, Urbana; zoology professor Kip McGilliard and Dr. Richard Larson from the university health service.

The seminar will attempt to relieve the thoughts of fear and panic in the general public generated from lack of information about the disease, and dispell the idea that the disease could be spread by casual contact in the workplace, said Angie Abrahamson, coordinator of AIDS Awareness Week.

How to handle employees or students exposed to a documented case in their environment will also be discussed, Abrahamson said.

Issues such as how to handle students or employees which are submitted to an environment where there is a documented case will also be discussed.

Larson will speak again at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the lobby of Stevenson Hall on the topic of "Aids; what you need to know."

Abrahamson, who is coordinating AIDS Awareness Week, said Larson will address the misconceptions some people have about the virus. "Some people aren't sure exactly what AIDS is all about and Dr. Larson will try to clear that up."

Popular misconceptions about AIDS are that the virus can be contacted from use of public bathrooms or telephones and shaking hands, Abrahamson said.

In addition to Larson's lecture, a film, "The AIDS Movie," will be shown in the video lounge at 12:45 p.m. Tuesday through Friday.

Faculty gets the short end of the stick

On the surface, it appears that by practically guaranteeing Eastern students that there won't be further tuition increases in 1990, the budget Gov. James R. Thompson has proposed to the General Assembly is in our best interests.

But look at that budget a little closer and that may not be the case.

Although it appears Thompson's proposed budget won't put a big dent in students' cash flow, it won't guarantee the teachers in Illinois the bonuses they deserve either.

Editorial Faculty and staff members in Illinois have asked for a 10 percent salary hike, and from the looks of things, they're not going to get it. Thompson's $21.8 billion budget, which includes a $115 million increase for higher education, will at the most, provide faculty and staff with only a 4 percent salary hike.

Thompson, (although he may appear to be a savior for higher education in general,) is not doing faculty and staff a favor by denying them a salary increase, and, on top of that, turning around and asking them to support an income tax increase that is supposed to directly benefit their employer - higher education. It's like saying "I'll tell you what folks. I can't give you that extra money right now, but if you can give me a couple of extra bucks, I can make higher education in Illinois better for all of us. Well, uh... I mean at least most of us."

Traditionally, when it comes to salaries, teachers and faculty at Eastern have gotten the short end of the stick.

And in the long run, it hasn't hurt them as much as it has hurt the university as a whole.

Eastern faculty members are constantly lured by teaching positions in other states that offer substantially higher salaries, benefits and research facilities. And as the case was in of 1988, if the offer is good enough, faculty members will jump at it. In 1988, Eastern lost about 12 faculty members to other states that could at least provide their teachers with some financial security. As funding for education (in all aspects) in Illinois continues to decline, so does the quality of education here.

The General Assembly, when it considers Thompson's budget proposal, must realize that you get what you pay for.

Quote of the day...

"One good schoolmaster is worth a thousand priests."

Robert Ingersoll

Hostile weather is good for one thing

I'm convinced that meteorologically, Illinois has got to be one of the most screwed up states in the nation.

I don't claim to be a weather expert, but think about it. Remember those few weeks in January (when the weather is supposed to like it is now) and the sun was shining, the temperature was close to 50 degrees, the wind was pleasantly mild, it was warm enough to wear shorts, and in general, everyone was in a good mood.

Now here we are in March, just a few weeks shy of spring break and there's about 10 inches of snow on the ground, it takes more than half an hour to get all of the ice off of your windshield, the wind is blowing right in your face at about a gazillion miles an hour, it's cold, your feet are wet, now that you got all of the ice off of your windshield your car won't start, once you do get your car started you can't get it out of the unplowed parking lot, and now that you realize you're in the middle of the unplowed parking lot, you try to put your car back to where you found it but it won't budge. And in general, everyone is not in a good mood.

Something is wrong.

Hello, welcome to Illinois.

Illinois is not a state that will intentionally brag about its varying climates. If you look at the covers of most tourism guides (and even Eastern's catalog and promotional paraphernalia) you won't see any pictures of people trudging through 10 inches of snow (with the wind blowing right in their faces at about a gazillion miles an hour) toting smiles on their faces and just making you think what a wonderful place Illinois to live. You won't see any pictures of three Eastern students sitting in the snow under an oak tree in the library quad (pretending to do their homework together), smiling and just making you think what a wonderful place Eastern must be.

You won't see any pictures of an Eastern student swearing and cursing at a Charleston city truck as it plows four feet of snow up against his door and wedges him in.

You won't see pictures of students building bonfires in the classrooms of Coleman Hall because for some reason, the heating system there was rigged up for the air conditioning to work during the winter months and the heating system to work in the summer months.

You won't see Stan Rives shoveling the sidewalk in front of Old Main, making you think what an incredible homy kind of guy Stan is.

And the reason is simple. If they did show pictures like that, nobody would willingly choose to go here.

And when I trudge all over campus in all of this, it makes me wonder why I came here.

But now that I am here, I have no choice but to deal with it. And I've decided that this crappy weather may actually have its advantages.

After all, it gives you a perfectly legitimate reason not to go to class.

Just when you were running out of the old standbys like "I just don't feel good," or "I'm still hanging from last weekend," or "If I don't get at least 18 hours of sleep today, I just won't be able to function," and "Well, I've got this paper due in a half hour and I haven't started it yet so I don't think I should go to class today," and finally, "This is the first time this semester that my electric blanket has reached the optimum temperature so I'd better stay in bed and enjoy it now because it's only a once a year thing."

Now all you need do is look out the window, and like any rational person, just say, "Uh-Uh, no way."

- Jeff Madsen is the editorial page editor and a regular columnist for The Daily Eastern News.

Clarification on cadaver classes

Dear editor;

I wish to clarify the comment attributed to one of my graduate assistants, Mr. Craig Gatto, in the Features article in the March 2 edition of The Daily Eastern News. He allegedly said, "It (the chemical used to preserve the tissues used for study) is something you either get used to or you drop the course."

This is too simplistic a representation of the problem that many persons have with the fumes which are prevalent in the anatomy lab. We have a number of ways to reduce an individual's contact with the organic vapors and to lessen the trauma of working in the presence of preserved materials. We will work with an individual in an effort to reach a mutually acceptable mechanism for accomodating such a difficulty which will also allow her/him to learn the subject matter. I repeatedly made this point during my interview for this article.

Most persons who drop the course do so for reasons not related to the conditions within the lab, but because of other conflicts caused by their overall class or work demands. Of course, there are persons who are too sensitive or allergic to the fumes to remain in class for either the lecture or lab sessions. However, most persons who do choose to drop the course (for reasons other than overall demands) do so not because of the organic fumes but because of an irreconcilable difficulty being in the presence of preserved animal or human organisms. As I noted above, we will work to circumvent these difficulties. It is only after such alternatives have been discussed that a student will "drop the course."

Finally, I would also note that some students who choose to drop because of the difficulty working with preserved materials do come back, and can successfully complete the course at another time.

Local health club sponsors collegiate contest

By MELISSA MERKER

Staff writer

Take out the weights and start lifting.

The Second Mr. and Ms. Eastern Illinois University Contest will be held April 22 in McAfee Gym.

Darrell Latch, owner of Son Light Total Fitness Center, 400 Sixth St., is sponsoring the contest for the second year. Students may register at the center before the April 1 deadline.

Latch, a winner of 46 national and world powerlifting records, recently won first place in the Masters 242 lb. class in the National ANPPC World Cup Powerlift Championships.

Latch, 40, has only been weight lifting for nine years and recently became a grandfather.

Latch said he's sponsoring the contest because he likes to help people feel better about themselves. Body building, to him, is an excellent way to accomplish this goal.

The satisfaction of seeing people look, and most importantly, feel better about themselves is something Latch has dedicated his life to.

"This contest is designed simply for the competitors in appreciation for all the hard work that every one of them does throughout the year," Latch said.

Contestants in the Mr. and Ms. Eastern University Contest must be registered Eastern students and pay a $15 entrance fee.

All contestants must provide their own music for their individual posing routine. Light oil is permitted, and only solid color posing suits are allowed.

Mandatory poses are required so contestants can be judged juxtaposed to each other in the same position. However, Latch said a free posing category is included and should be about 90 seconds with music.

All contestants will be awarded a trophy in recognition of their hard work. There will also be an overall trophy awarded to the best male and female, Latch said.

NRHH recognizes students' hard work

By KELLY SEIFERT

Staff writer

Eastern's campus recognizes the hard work and involvement of its residence hall students through the organization, National Residence Hall Honorary (NRHH).

The top 1 percent of residence hall students that have demonstrated outstanding leadership within a residence hall are nominated by residence hall counselors, the central housing staff, Residence Hall Association, and NRHH, said Sandy Gallion, adviser to NRHH and Pemberton Hall counselor. Once nominated these students are initiated into the organization.

NRHH is a council of 38 members that not only gives recognition to the students who show outstanding leadership in residence hall activities, but NRHH also serves in helping the residence halls with their programs, Gallion said.

Gallion said the main goal of NRHH is raising money to donate to the Enochs Scholarship, which is given out yearly to a person who has contributed the most to a residence hall. This year the Enochs Scholarship is valued at $1,300 of which $1,000 is donated by NRHH.

NRHH raises money by holding fundraisers within the residence halls. Junior Julie Itahara, president of Lawson Inc., a council that helps with programming activities for Lawson Hall, said the biggest committee of NRHH is desk sales.

Members are required to serve on at least one NRHH committee. Itahara, a second semester member, said she received all of her experience through her position as president of Lawson Inc. "Experience is the key to working on NRHH, along with dedication to caring about the residence halls."

Members are also required to maintain a 2.25 GPA as well as use their leadership qualities to work with the residence halls.

Senate hopes to decide on proposal

The Faculty Senate will finish its discussion of the Board of Governors proposed copyright and patent amendment Tuesday afternoon.

The amendment would give ownership rights to the BOG for any research work done by faculty members or students if the BOG gave funding or time off to complete the project.

"We hope to bring to closure our consideration of the patent and copyright issue," Senate Chair Gary Foster said.

He added that the senate will respond to the proposal in a letter.

Driving laws may change for elderly

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Citing a sharp increase in traffic accidents involving elderly drivers, Secretary of State Jim Edgar on Monday proposed tougher driver's license requirements for people over age 81.

The plan would require drivers 81 and older to take a driving test every two years. Drivers 87 and older would have to pass an annual road test to retain their license.

Edgar would also require drivers between the ages of 75 and 81 to pass a road test every four years, but would drop that requirement for drivers between the ages of 69 and 74.

"I know this proposal is not going to be popular with many people, but this is something that must be done if we're going to save lives," Edgar said at a Chicago news conference.

The number of Illinois drivers over age 81 has more than doubled in the last decade, from 37,704 in 1979 to 90,712 today, and is expected to nearly double again by the year 2000, according to a study by Edgar's office.

The study found that the rate of fatal accidents among drivers between the ages of 81 and 86 is more than four times as high as that of the general population.

Sentor's wife featured in womens' seminar

By GREG SCALIA
Staff writer

Jeanne Simon, wife of U.S. Sen. Paul Simon (D-Ill.), will be featured in a free presentation that is part of Women's History and Awareness Month.

The presentation, which is sponsored by The Women's Studies Council of Eastern, is titled "Women in Politics: Past, Present and Future," and will take place 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Booth Library Lecture Hall.

The presentation will feature other reputable women, such as State Sen. Penny Severns, State Reps. Helen Satterthwaite and Karen Hasara and Coles County Clerk Betty Coffrin.

"We started asking women in politics if they were interested in speaking and very few said no," said Ruth Hoberman, associate professor of English, and chair of the council.

Hoberman also said the presentation will be given by a panel of the featured women, as well as two other professors from the political science department.

Wendy Hamand, associate professor of history, will be mediating the panel and prior to the discussion she will give a brief history of women in politics.

"Each member will speak for about 10 minutes and then there will be a very long question and answer session," Hoberman said.

After the presentation, there will be a reception where audience members will have the opportunity to talk to the panel.

"We want to encourage mingling and continued discussion of the topics," Hoberman said.

The Women's Studies Council of Eastern consists of faculty, staff and community members. The council has been sponsoring women's activities since 1983.

Soviet Union proposes extensive military reductions

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—The Soviet Union proposed huge reductions in troops and armor and recommended Monday that the Warsaw Pact and NATO negotiate to eliminate all battlefield nuclear weapons from Europe.

Foreign Minister Eduard A. Scevrandadze's proposals went far beyond the reductions NATO plans to suggest at conventional arms talks that begin Thursday.

In a later speech, Secretary of State, James A. Baker III told 35 foreign ministers gathered in a baroque palace that the West's goal, at least initially, is to reduce the Warsaw Pact's current advantage in conventional forces.

Estimates vary, but give the Soviet-led alliance at least a 2-1 advantage in tanks.

"The Warsaw Pact's conventional military preponderance, especially in the spearheads of attack, is what makes an invasion possible," Baker said.

He urged Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev to implement the "new thinking" that guides economic and political reform in the Soviet Union by renouncing the Brezhnev Doctrine "beyond any shadow of a doubt."

That doctrine permits military intervention in a Soviet bloc country in the event of a liberal insurrection. The late President Leonid I. Brezhnev enunciated it after the Red Army crushed the liberal "Prague Spring" of 1968 in Czechoslovakia.

"Those in the East should be free of the fear that armed Soviet intervention, justified by the Brezhnev Doctrine, would be used again to deny them choice," Baker said.

He also said Australia would organize a conference to prevent the spread of chemical weapons and the Bush administration was exploring ways to speed the removal of U.S. chemical weapons from West Germany.

Baker added, however: "Unilateral action is not enough. The Soviet Union has enormous stocks of chemical weapons threatening Europe. We therefore call on the Soviets to join us, to accelerate the destruction of their enormous stockpile of these frightening weapons."

In Bonn, Chancellor Helmut Kohl said: "I welcome this intention to explore ways for the early removal of chemical weapons from the Federal Republic."

Kohl's chief spokesman, Friedhelm Ost, said earlier Baker had telephoned the chancellor Sunday night and told him the aging U.S. chemical weapons would be withdrawn by 1992.

Shevardnadze countered a NATO proposal to retire at least 25,000 Warsaw Pact tanks, then reduce armor, artillery and personnel carriers on both sides by 5-10 percent, with a three-phase plan for the radical cuts.

Big business helps growth of small town

PROPHETSTOWN, Ill. (AP) — Leaders of this northwestern Illinois community said it might not survive without another business, so they went out and bought one.

"We figured if we didn't grow, we'd die," said Howard "Bud" Thompson, 58, a local hog hauler and president of Prophetstown Manufacturing Inc., or PMI, which brought Clear Creek Furniture Co. to this community of 2,100 about 80 miles west of Chicago.

"It's going to take something like this to keep small towns alive, revived, or whatever you want to call it," he said. "As you go around Illinois you can smell death."

Clear Creek has eight workers who saw, sand, and spray finish on oak furniture patterned after designs of the 18th and 19th century. The furniture sells in 14 states, especially in the Midwest.

With the federal government's approval, local officials created PMI, sold $10 shares and made an offer to Darrell Milsap: you need the capital, we want your furniture.

Milsap and his wife, Diane, packed up the company and moved 75 miles from Granville in north central Illinois to the banks of the Rock River in Whiteside County, where they manage the business now owned by PMI.

Wayne Proeger, 34, Clear Creek's chief assembler, said, "It's very difficult to keep a small town going. Small businesses have trouble competing with large corporations."

Added Proeger, "I like living in small, rural communities. There's more of a relationship between citizens. In big cities people don't talk to one another and, of course," he said, "we've got a lot more space."

Students face charges

An Eastern freshman could face two sentences of four to 15 years in prison for two separate incidents of residential burglary if he is tried and convicted on the charges.

Anthony Clark, 720 Regency Circle, #12 Hampton, was arrested in connection with a Dec. 4 (1988) burglary at 706 Regency Circle, #11 Hampton, the apartment next door to Clark's.

Court records indicate information concerning the Dec. 4 incident was filed on March 3, and a warrant was issued. Bond for Clark was set at $5,000.

In a separate incident, Clark and freshman Corey Glass face an April 4 jury trial in connection with another burglary, which occurred Feb. 3 or 4 at 2106 Ninth St., #36.

If tried on the charges, Glass, who was arrested only in connection with the February burglary, and Clark could face four to 15 years in prison, which is punishable for a class 1 felony.

course requirements advisory instead of mandatory. If the ruling is reversed Tuesday, each university will maintain the freedom to establish their own admission standards.

Ross Hodel, IBHE executive director, told the Associated Press that "the universities have made significant progress. . . since 1983 when the board first began studying this issue."

But Eastern's current high school course requirements for beginning freshmen still don't meet up to the standards established by the IBHE in 1985. Applicants are only required to have two years of social studies, two years of mathematics and one year of science.

Former informant wants reward

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—A former federal informant is at odds with the Internal Revenue Service over a reward he says he is due for helping to crack a $16 million money-laundering scheme based in Bloomington.

"Public disclosure laws won't let us discuss the case," said Kris Zini, IRS spokeswoman in Springfield.

Another government spokesman said informant Donald Montgomery may be entitled to some of the millions recovered in the case. But a judge first must decide how much will go to the IRS as seized income.

"We don't owe him any money, in the sense of anything that's public," Assistant U.S. Attorney Pat Chesley said Monday.

"He has made application for a reward. In general, people who provide information to the IRS can petition for a reward. In this case, there are a number of civil lawsuits as to the disposition of the money. It is by no means clear how much money the IRS is to receive, if any, from this civil morass."

Montgomery, 49, has enlisted the help of a Mississippi congressman to pry loose the disputed money for Montgomery's assistance to authorities in tracking down Richard and Bridget Jones of Bloomington.

"We weren't an investigative team," North said. "We were just trying to run down some problems."

Physics instructor Scott Smith, who was part of the ad hoc committee meeting with Chen, said they had talked to her in her office.

"I really felt it was because she was intimidated (that she did not attend the Faculty Senate)," Smith said.

Smith said some students felt the scholarships were being given out unequally. "She said not. That was the most serious charge," Smith said, "but we could never get to the bottom of it (because it was) too difficult to prove."

Smith said after meeting with her, the subject of unfair scholarship awarding was dropped when she indicated that some of the feelings of international students were not valid.

In a Monday, Feb. 20 interview, when Chen was questioned about an ad hoc committee that met with her to discuss student complaints about scholarship awards, she refused to comment on the fall 1986 occurrence saving. "I had told the Faculty Senate at that time (concerning scholarship awards). I don't think I need to go into the reason now (why the committee met with her)."

A suggestion that a committee be formed to award scholarships was made to Chen, but never acted on, Smith said, adding that the attitude of the committee and senate was one of, "let's back off now, because she knows we are watching. Now that she knows we are concerned, let's see if she improves."

But Smith said, the senate did not make any attempts to monitor her. He said there were no reports from that meeting. "We didn't document anything," he said. "But we did get her attention."

North said the senate never did get to the bottom of it.

Hans Schmeits, former president for the Association of International Students, said he knew the Faculty Senate had suggested installing a supervisory committee over scholarship awards but added, "they (Faculty Senate) never communicated any facts back."

But the issue did not die with the Faculty Senate. The following spring, during the 1987-88 school year, yet another avenue was explored when Feza Pehlivan, former president of AIS succeeding Schmeits, approached the Student Senate with similar complaints.

Andrea Pyle, executive vice president, said the subject had come up in the International/Minority Student Relations Committee that Pehlivan was also a member of. Pyle said nothing could be done at that time because of international student fears.

Pyle said complaints at that time consisted of unfair scholarship practices and Chen's lack of concern for student problems.

Political science major Harlan Aldort, an active in AIS that year, said he assisted Pehlivan with suggestions in dealing with the scholarship situation.

"It bothered me that one person had control of the scholarships and could use that control over the students," said Aldort, a U.S. citizen and former exchange student to Israel.

Eulalee Anderson, former international student adviser who preceeded Chen's acceptance of the job, explained during her time and her predecessor's, scholarships were given as long as students maintained a certain grade point average and remained in student status by taking the minimum number of credits.

Currently students on scholarship are required to apply each year with no guarantee that scholarships will be renewed even if their GPA or student status is maintained, students say.

In an interview with Chen in December, she said she had only two or three scholarship awards to give out. However, results from Daily Eastern News' interviews with international students reveal several times that number.

Last Monday, Chen refused to acknowledge the number of scholarships her office currently had however, Wednesday Chen revealed graduate student scholarships for her office were $116,640 and $52,416 for undergraduates for the 88-89 school year.

Currently out-of-state tuition, which international students must pay, is $2,598.85 a semester, according to Eastern's office of admissions.

Chen declined to speak about the awarding of scholarships saying, "I don't think it is our purpose here to discuss scholarships and the way they are given."

James Johnson, assistant dean of student services, who was interviewed with Chen simultaneously, said faculty members are not aware enough of federal requirements to adequately staff a committee to review applications for international scholarships.

Wednesday: student reaction and survey results about the international student policies.

3 grapplers go on to nationals

Rule change keeps another out

By JERRY SOLBERG
Staff writer

Most of Eastern's wrestlers cruised into the NCAA Western Regional with high expectations and three of them fulfilled their dreams, but several others were left with someone else deciding their fates.

Eastern, which finished with a 12-2 season mark, topped last year's two NCAA tournament qualifiers this weekend by sending seniors 118-pound Craig Sterr and 177-pound Marty Molina, along with 150-pound junior Terry Murphy out of the meet held in Des Moines, Iowa.

Sterr, who will be making his third straight trip to the NCAA finals, was able to qualify with his third-place finish because of a newly instated policy.

This new ruling has only the first-place finisher at the regional automatically making the NCAA tourney. The coaches then vote for one other wrestler in that weight class who they believe also should go on to the NCAA finals.

Sterr had the unfortunate task of facing two wrestlers ranked in the nation's top 10 and fell to both. But because he came back to easily defeat the rest of his opponents, Sterr impressed enough to earn a trip to Oklahoma City for the NCAA tourney to be held March 16-18.

"Sterr lost a tight match to a guy ranked ninth in the nation right away," Eastern coach Ralph McCausland said. "He came back and dominated the next couple of opponents and qualified."

Molina would have qualified under either ruling with his second-place finish at the regionals. But Molina didn't feel that his final meet, a 4-2 loss, was his top performance.

"I was not wrestling my best match," Molina said. "I hope I will be able to get to my better stuff by the nationals."

Although Murphy also recorded an second-place finish, he didn't actually lose his final match.

Murphy and Northern Iowa's Pat Hogan fought to 4-4 tie past overtime, when criteria then gave the decision to Hogan.

"I felt he won fair and square," Murphy said. "I really did want to get revenge on a 5-4 loss I had to him earlier in the year."

Sending three wrestlers to the NCAA tournament certainly adds to an already impressive season, but several other Eastern wrestlers may have made it also if not for the intervention of outside forces.

If it were last year, Eastern heavyweight Dan Ivanisevic would be joining his three teammates at the nationals with his second-place mark. But this year's new rule allowed the coaches to decide not to send Ivanisevic, who had at least seemed to convince his own coach he was worthy.

"Ivanisevic wrestled a whale of a tournament," McCausland said. "I just hope this doesn't overshadow how well he wrestled."

Ivanisevic lost his final round match by fall to Northern Iowa's Joel Greenlee, who is ranked second in the nation.

Two other Eastern wrestlers who may have qualified under better circumstances were 134-pound Ray Serbick and 142-pound Dave Marlow.

Both were penalized points for infractions in their matches that McCausland said he felt were bad calls.

"Officials really started to take control of both of their matches," McCausland said. "It's hard to wrestle when you wrestle home-state wrestlers and their officials."

Although the regional did have a couple of minor unfortunate turnabouts like this, McCausland didn't want to let these things cloud some impressive showings by the Panthers.

"You've got to be happy when you send three wrestlers to the nationals," said McCausland.

UIC shocks UNI, advances to meet EIU

By DAVID LINDQUIST
Associate sports editor

Illinois-Chicago, which entered the Association of Mid-Continent Universities tournament with the lowest seed, shell-shocked Northern Iowa 90-69 in the tourney's last first round game Monday evening in Springfield, Mo.

Northern Iowa had ridden into to the conference's showcase with the No. 2 seed, the league's coach of the year and players on both the first and second team all-AMCU squads.

But Eldon Miller and the purple Panthers exit in the first round with a 19-9 season record, failing to leap over the previously low Flames.

UIC, which advances to meet Eastern at 6 p.m. Tuesday with a 12-16 mark, placed five scorers in double figures and hit 53 percent of its field goal attempts.

Northern Iowa's offense could muster just 38 percent from the field, and first-team all-AMCU pick Jason Reese was held to five points.

Steve Phyfe, UNI's second-team selection, scored a team-high 13 for the purple Panthers, but provided far less firepower than the Flames.

Chris Harris drilled nine of 13 field goal attempts and all six free throw tries to lead UIC with 24 points.

Northern Iowa, which defeated the Flames in two earlier meetings this season, trailed 20-18 with 8:23 remaining in the first half and saw the Flames fan their lead to 46-30 by intermission.

Eastern has also defeated Illinois-Chicago twice this season, topping the Flames 70-69 in Chicago on Feb. 23 and 90-84 at Lantz Gym on Feb. 4.

UIC entered the AMCU tourney after dropping 10 of its last 11 games, and clinched last place in the conference standings last Saturday by falling to No. 1 seed Southwest Missouri State 68-59 in Chicago.

Mouse ends CSU career with record

It was a record-breaking night in Cleveland.

Ken "Mouse" McFadden polished off a brilliant career Monday, setting a new school career scoring record, as Cleveland State pounded Missouri-Kansas City 99-61 in its season finale.

McFadden scored 25 points against the first-year Division I school, giving the 6-1 senior 2,256 career points and breaking the previous record of 2,235 career points, held by Franklin Edwards, who played for the Vikings from 1977-81.

In the process, McFadden also increased the Association of Mid-Continent Universities career scoring mark, a record he broke earlier this season.

In addition, 6-8 senior forward Warren Bradley had a game-high 18 rebounds to become Cleveland State's all-time leading rebounder.

Valpo tips Wisconsin-Green Bay 53-51

By DAVID LINDQUIST
Associate sports editor

A tip-in basket by Scott Anselm with one second remaining propelled No. 4 seeded Valparaiso to a 53-51 victory over Wisconsin-Green Bay, No. 5, in the opening game of the Association of Mid-Continent Universities tournament Monday.

The upset win by the Crusaders, moves Valpo into a semifinal matchup at 8 p.m. Tuesday with Southwest Missouri. Valparaiso knocked off SMS 62-59 on the Bears' Hammons Center court on Feb. 27.

Wisconsin-Green Bay, finishing its season with a 14-14 record, had a 10-point lead over Valparaiso, 10-18, in the second half.

The Crusaders took control of the contest however, when it went on a 15-3 scoring run to end the game.

Valparaiso held a 28-27 half-time edge but quickly lost it after intermission. The second half's only tie occurred with 1:19 remaining when Crusaders guard Mike Jones drilled a three-point goal to knot the game 51-51.

On Valpo's final possession, guard Todd Smith missed a jump shot, but Anselm was there to break the tie with his rebound basket.

Anselm led all scorers with 18 points, while Valpo's Jim Ford, a first-team all-AMCU selection, added 15.

Green Bay was led in scoring by Dan Oberbrunner's 14-point performance, but AMCU Newcomer of the Year, Tony Bennett, disappointed with just eight points in the final game of his freshman season.

Flora, ESL Assumption at Lantz

By DAVID BRUMMER
Staff writer

March Madness drops an anchor at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Lantz Gym when the Flora Wolves (27-4) and the East St. Louis Assumption Pioneers (23-7) meet in Illinois High School Association boys Class A Supersectional action.

The winner advances to the Class A state tournament this weekend at Assembly Hall in Champaign.

ESL Assumption, who had never won a regional title until this year, would seem to be a team of destiny. In January it was announced that the school would close at year's end. Since then, the basketball team, coached by Ron Woods, has used the imminent closing as a battle cry toward the ultimate goal of a state basketball championship.

The Pioneers, led by 6-7 junior Ian Stanbeck's 17 point-per-game scoring average and Monteff Dixon's 16 ppg, rolled through the Vandalia sectional, beating Patoka 80-60 in the championship.

Flora, who went to the state tournament in 1984 with a team that featured then-freshman and present Wisconsin Badger Tim Locum, is led by another Locum this time around.

Jim Locum, a 6-3 senior and the brother of Tim, averages 20 ppg and scored a team-high 16 points in the Wolves' 66-61 sectional championship win over Robinson. Coach Tom Welch's squad also features 6-7 junior Paul Turlais.

The winner here will likely face third-ranked Prairie Central Friday. But the Hawks (27-1) will first have to get past Downs Tri-Valley (20-8) at Normal.

Snow show

Eastern whips punchless WIU 81-47

By JAMES BETZOLD
Sports editor

Maybe a blizzard is just what Eastern needed to get mean.

With 14 inches of snow on the ground outside Hammons Student Center in Springfield, Mo., the Panthers (16-15) dismantled Western Illinois (9-19) 81-47 in the first round of the Association of Mid-Continent Universities post-season tournament.

The Panthers and the other five visiting teams arrived in town right before the winter storm blasted the region and blocked Interstate 44, but the Leathernecks might just as well have stayed home.

After leading 15-11 early in the first half, the Leathernecks apparently ran into a snow drift. The stall coincided with a 25-4 Eastern scoring run and an Eastern defensive adjustment.

"We played good defense," Eastern coach Rick Samuels said in a post-game radio interview. "We switched to our matchup zone about seven or eight minutes into the first half. We played it aggressively, and it really bothered Western Illinois."

Eastern's scoring run began on a rebound basket and foul by Dave Vance. Vance missed the free throw, but Eastern got the rebound and Jay Taylor converted a three-point goal to make it a five-point play.

Midway through the scoring barrage, though, Eastern suffered a scare when Taylor was fouled and had a severe cut opened above his right eye.

"Jay's injury shocked us all," Samuels said. "He did have six or seven stitches at halftime, and he never got into a good flow in the game."

Taylor still managed to return and score a game-high 25 points, but it was a team effort that buried Western in the second half. The cushion benefited the Panthers twofold as they prepare for semifinal action Tuesday.

"We got to rest all of our starters for a good portion of the second half," Samuels said. "It's a good chance to rest our kids and also give our guys off the bench a chance to get in and get a good flow."

Next up for the Panthers is Illinois-Chicago, an upset winner over No. 2 seed Northern Iowa. Eastern has defeated the Flames twice this season, but Samuels says that doesn't give his team any reason to relax.

"This UIC team scares me," Samuels said. "You can see the talent they have."

Taylor named league MVP

Eastern guard Jay Taylor was named Association of Mid-Continent Universities Player of the Year in a poll of media representatives released Monday before the conference tourney began at Springfield, Mo.

With a 25-point effort against Western, the senior broke the AMCU's single-season scoring record of 720 points and now has 732.

Taylor, who entered Monday's game averaging a league-leading 23.9 points per game, makes his second consecutive appearance on the All-AMCU team.

Other members of the 1988-89 All-AMCU team are: Valparaiso center Jim Ford; Cleveland State guard Ken "Mouse" McFadden (last year's Player of the Year); Northern Iowa center Jason Reese; and Southwest Missouri State center Kelby Stuckey.

In addition, Northern Iowa's Eldon Miller was named Coach of the Year for his team's second-place finish in the regular season. In a preseason poll of conference coaches, UNI was picked to finish fifth.

Wisconsin-Green Bay freshman Tony Bennett was named AMCU Newcomer of the Year.

The only other Eastern player awarded was forward Dave Vance, who made his third consecutive appearance on the AMCU All-Academic team.

Worst of storm past AMCU site

Springfield, Mo., experienced one of its worst blizzards in the last century this past weekend, but the Association of Mid-Continent Universities post-season tournament will progress as scheduled.

"It's slowing things down," Southwest Missouri State Sports Information Director Mark Stillwell said of the 14 inches of snow dumped on the city of 160,000. "But the tournament will stay on schedule."

Interstate 44, the highway which connects St. Louis and Springfield, was closed intermittently and had one-lane traffic moving 25-30 mph Monday morning, according to a spokesman of Missouri's Highway Patrol.

By 10:00 p.m. Monday, the Missouri police said I-44 had virtually returned to normal, but highway reports from Collinsville and Effingham indicated slippery and hazardous conditions in those areas of Interstate 70.

Lady Panthers fall short at ISU

By BILL LOOBY
Staff writer

Illinois State hauled in 51 rebounds in charging to a 83-71 victory over the Lady Panthers in a Gateway Tournament semi-final Monday at Redbird Arena in Normal.

The win vaults the Redbirds into the championship game against Southern Illinois, which beat Drake 80-65 in Carbondale Monday.

The Redbirds dominance of the boards Monday included 20 offensive caroms, while Eastern could only come up with 29 total rebounds.

"They totally dominated us on the boards," Eastern coach Barbara Hilke said. "Illinois State shot well and rebounded well."

The Redbirds used pinpoint shooting to pull out to a 39-29 halftime lead, getting 16 points from center Cindy Kaufmann and eight points out of guard Ellen McGrew. Kaufmann finished with a game-high 29 points.

Eastern fell 16 points behind in the second half, when Leslie Ferrell hit a layup with 8:01 remaining.

But then Eastern started a comeback bid that had to have the Redbirds thinking about last year's tournament final.

Eastern beat Illinois State in the 1988 Gateway title match after coming back from a 21-point deficit in the second half.

This year, Sheryl Bonsett hit a three-point shot that cut the Redbird lead to 70-64 with 1:37 left in the game.

"For a while there I thought it was going to be a case of déjà vu," Hilke said.

However, the Redbirds quelled the Eastern rally hitting 13-14 free throws in the final 1:23 to ice the game.

Tracy Roller led the second half charge, scoring all 14 of her points after the intermission. Lisa Tyler chipped in with 13 points, 11 coming in the second half.

Absent from the Lady Panther offense was Barb Perkes, who finished with only seven points after hitting two of 12 field goal attempts. Perkes led the Panthers in their miracle victory over the Redbirds last year.

"She was definitely out of sync," Hilke said. "She could not move her feet on defense; she did not have a good game."

Perkes missed a major portion of this season, hobbled by stress fractures throughout the Gateway season.

The Lady Panthers beat the Redbirds last Wednesday 75-67 but the home court again proved to be a factor. The home team has won in the series 10 of the last 11 times. This was the first time Eastern had played in the new Redbird Arena.

"I'd like to congratulate Illinois State, they played a good ballgame, Hilke said.
